

Department of Southeast Asian Studies
SUMMER SESSION B (July 30 – September 1, 2018)
Anthropological Perspectives on Gender in Southeast Asia

This course examines the intersections of gender, power, and sexuality in post-colonial Southeast Asia. It revisits early ethnographic claims of gender equality. The course also addresses current anthropological literature on the effects of colonialism, capitalism, and globalization on gender roles and relations within national and transnational contexts.

TTh 1:10 pm - 4:00 pm

Southeast Asian Studies 136/Anthropology 136

Instructor: Sophea Seng